

STARS WINNERS

Regiments Put up Very Unlucky Ball.

Gorman Broke the Series of Circles—Mayne Not Equal to Task.

The only force that kept Mayne from being batted out of the box on Saturday was his toe plates; they weighted him down so that he stayed in all right, but the Star boys batted him whither they listeth. On the practice games during the week the Regiment boys showed up in likely form, catching the ball easily with one finger or with their feet. But good practice does not always proceed good playing, and instead of their catching the ball "with their teeth," as Hennessy put it, they fell all over it, and it looked at times as though they just went out in the field to help the Star boys make a few runs. Perfect order reigned in the grand stand, and men who have been accustomed to smoke in the ladies' section were invited by Captain Bowers to give up the practice or take seats with the boys.

The Stars were first to bat, and Lishman struck the first ball and flew out to Moore. Hart hit short to Kiley at center, for Kiley failed to run up on it, and the batter made first. Wilder fanned out Mahuka singled to left and rapid running brought him home on Pahau's hit to center. Sam Wood made an infield hit that brought Pahau home, but the batter went out.

One fair and two foul flies were the diseases which carried off Bower, Moore and Luahiwa for the Regiment team.

Koki hit to Moore and went out at first. Then Mayne began to weaken, and McNichol got his base on balls and second on an undisputed balk. Lishman hit to Mayne and went out at first. McNichol could not run enough to make third; a double play retired him with Lishman.

Kiley made a hit to left for a single, but Gorman's hit to third put him out at second. Kaanohi, out at first on hit to Hart, and Davis sent the ball right into McNichol's hands in right field. Gorman did not get beyond second base.

Three runs in the third were enough to convince the friends of the Regiment team that they were not in it. Hart was struck by the ball, and trotted to first. Wilder surprised everyone by jabbing the ball down to the corner of the center field, and made a three-bagger. Hart came home. Mahuka sent the ball to left, and Duncan made a very neat single-handed stop, so that the batter did not get beyond first. Wilder came home on a sacrifice; Babbitt took first on balls. Woods hit to right and brought Mahuka home, Hart out at plate and Koki at first.

Duncan hit for a single, but Mayne flew out, and by prompt handling of the ball by Hart, Duncan went out at first. Bower went out on foul fly to Wilder. McNichol hit to Mayne, who muffed and let him amble to first. Lishman took a base on balls. Hart died at first on an infield hit. Wilder flew out to Kaanohi at short. Moore played so slow that McNichol came home. Mahuka's hit to center brought Lishman home. Mahuka came home. Then Moore, Luahiwa and Kiley went out in one, two, three order for the Regiment's half inning.

Pahau flew out to Bower at third. Babbitt went out at first on a short hit to Moore. Woods hit to center for a base and stole second. Koki took first on balls. McNichol's hit to right brought Woods and Koki home. McNichol went out at third.

The Regiments again retired in one, two three order, no one getting beyond first. Lishman took a base on balls. Hart drove to center and Kiley's slow fielding allowed Lishman to make the plate. That was the tally of the inning. Wilder, Hart and Mahuka dropped out of sight.

Then the Regiments had an inning, but they merely played with it. Moore made a hit after two men were out, and Luahiwa struck out, so that he did not get beyond second.

In the seventh inning Babbitt, Woods and Koki made runs on a hit to second by Woods.

Gorman swatted the ball to center fence, after Kiley had gone out on a hit to third. Gorman made third on his hit, and afterward stole home on a passed ball. Kaanohi, Moore and Duncan dropped out.

Hart, Wilder and Mahuka died before they could leave the plate, and then the Regiments got in and hustled for three runs, and in the same inning the Stars made a ring around.

The playing by the Regiment team was manifestly bad, so bad as to create much adverse comment. Mayne was so nervous that he put the ball just where the Star boys could hit it. Following is the score:

PROFESSOR MEAD

Lectures Before Teachers at Summer School.

Dr. Brown's Course Continued. Interest in School Increases.

The large number of teachers present yesterday morning at the Summer School shows that the interest in the work is keeping up. Dr. Brown addressed the second section at 9 a. m. on the subject of "Vagueness and Perfection." Dr. Brown pointed out that in a good picture there is plenty of detail in the foreground, and that the background must suggest distance, vagueness. A good sermon has some particular detail well worked out, but the distant and remote is given some value. So in the case of teachers. They must attend to the detail of education, but they must not forget to lead the pupil on to aspirations to reach that which is beyond.

In some branches of instruction, perfection can be attained; for example, in arithmetic. The work is capable of being done perfectly. This perfection should be insisted upon; a few mistakes should not be allowed to pass. Perfection must be demanded. In other branches, as English, it is impossible to attain complete perfection in a short time, but some particular point should be made important, so that the work in that line may be perfect. The reason that many teachers do not get perfect work from their pupils is that they do not expect it. Remembering that perfection is the aim, the teacher should not allow incorrect models to be presented to the child.

At the same time, the teacher is to be pitied who works for merely mechanical detail. Let us have some sense of the beyond, of vagueness. Dr. Brown illustrated his point by a reference to the Nebula hypothesis. This world, this solar system was, in a remote past, formed from "star dust." The astronomer frequently meets with this "star dust," and there is plenty of it left for the formation of new worlds. The teacher must have new star dust constantly in reserve. He must be able to create new worlds for his pupils, otherwise he will become like the moon—lifeless.

At 1 p. m. yesterday the members of the Summer School and several visitors assembled in the assembly room of the High School to listen to an address by Professor Mead, of Chicago University.

Professor Mead took as his subject "The Relationship Between Play and Education." He said that we are apt to believe that there is a great distance between work and play. The kindergarten, however, combine work with play in their kindergartens. The spontaneous activity of the child is made use of in the kindergartens. This is following Nature's plan. We see the lower animals gaining their education by means of play. The kitten learns by means of play, the way to catch a mouse and thereby gain a living. In schools the end to be gained is constantly kept in view, and the means to the end is school discipline. The university appeals to the interest of the student. But in the grades between the kindergarten and the university it has been customary to eliminate wholly or in part the question of the spontaneous interest of the pupil. It has been considered by some that another grade is necessary between the kindergarten and the primary school. In some primary schools, however, the kindergarten methods of play are carried on. Professor Mead gave instances of children being allowed to use real coin with which to work, and it was his opinion that by this method, the number work of two years could be done in one year. Everything done by the spontaneous activity of the child is more direct than that done by school discipline. It is to be noted that the child's acts of play are isolated; he has no thought for the end in view. He is interested in the process itself. The teacher who can lay hold of this spontaneous activity taps a great reservoir of energy. We cannot suddenly change our entire school system, but we can do a great deal to utilize this activity in the school room. In this age we are making a study of the child. We treat children better. We get nearer to him.

IN ANTICIPATION.

Australia May Bring News of Annexation.

The Australia, arriving today, will probably bring the result of the meeting of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, which was to have been held on the 9th inst. Regarding this meeting, one of the Cabinet Minister said yesterday:

"I would not be surprised to learn that the treaty had passed the Senate. From letters I have received I feel confident an effort will be made to push it before the close of the special session."

"There was a doubt that the necessary two-thirds vote could be secured at this time, but the doubt was supported by facts. If President McKinley had not felt certain of the treaty passing at this time, I do not believe he would have handed it to the Senate. Now that Senator Davis has called the committee together, I imagine he had secured the required number of votes to pass the bill. Some of the Senators may feel that it is a measure requiring considerable debate, and if any steady speakers object to it, then it may be thrown over until next session. The weather is too warm in Washington at this season to tempt the members to remain through a long debate."

"When Messrs. Thurston and Kinney left Washington it was practically decided that action on the bill would be deferred, but the time became ripe, evidently, for bringing up the bill, and the friends of Hawaii were ready to act promptly."

Robert C. Haskell Dead.

News has arrived of the recent death of Robert C. Haskell, at his home in Lansingburg, N. Y. Mr. Haskell was graduated from Yale in 1858, and was immediately appointed professor of mathematics in Oahu College. Among his pupils here was David Kalakaua. In 1860 Mr. Haskell returned to the United States and engaged in the manufacture of oilclothing at Lansingburg. In July, 1861, he received the degree of M. A. from Yale. He was largely influential in building up the school system in Lansingburg, and established the kindergarten there. He was a trustee of the Lansingburg Academy, of the Emma Willard Seminary, and of the Hampton Institute, Virginia. He was stricken with paralysis in 1895 and never fully recovered. Mr. Haskell was married to Sarah H. Parmelee in 1863. Their only child, born in 1865, died in infancy.

Admiral's Inspection.

There was the beginning of an Admiral's inspection aboard the U. S. S. Philadelphia yesterday forenoon. The decks were cleared for action, and all the guns were worked, as if in actual warfare. The men at their posts and obeying every command with dispatch, gave the warship an extremely warlike appearance. The launches stripped of all canvas, the ladders over the sides and the swinging around of the Philadelphia heightened the effect. There was unusual activity. The men were first inspected in uniform. All the boats were then armed for distant service. Then came fire drill, collision drill and abandon ship, the last being, perhaps, the most interesting to watch. Provisions for several weeks were put into the boats and all hands put off, leaving not a soul aboard.

Memorial to Rev. Hiram Bingham.

The trustees of Oahu College propose to set up a memorial in memory of the late Rev. Hiram Bingham, first missionary on the Island of Oahu, and a benefactor of the college. The house occupied by Rev. Mr. Bingham was situated just mauka of the site now occupied by the president's house on the college grounds and about 20 feet from the driveway. The trustees will select a large boulder and place it in position as nearly as possible on the spot where the house originally stood. One face of the rock will be trimmed off to receive a suitable inscription.

Party to Chinese Theatre.

A party, composed of Prof. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. M. Roberts and Miss Roberts of Stanford, together with Judge

Frear, Mr. and Mrs. Warwick, Miss Dillingham, Mr. C. H. W. Norton and others were present at the grand opera in the old Chinese theater last night. The visitors enjoyed the entertainment very much, but felt rather chagrined once or twice at applauding in the wrong place.

Paid $25 and Costs.

They paid $25 and costs in the Police Court Saturday morning, at the request of Judge Wilcox. This is in reference to seven of the young sports who held down a table in the basement in the Hawaiian Hotel one night last week. There were informers on the spot, and someone told on the boys. As stated in Saturday morning's paper, they were summoned to appear in the Police Court. Three of the fellows were just watching the progress of the game, so no one prosecuted were entered in their cases and defendants discharged.

Teachers Visit.

About a baker's dozen of lady teachers, attending the Summer School, visited the Advertiser office last night, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans. They were shown the great Mergenthaler linotypes in operation and given a general insight into the mechanical department of a newspaper.

Last Sight of Kaili.

The James Makee brought the news that the day after Kaili committed the murder, for which the police are hunting him day and night, he went to Kailiwhai and, after frightening a Japanese proprietor out of his store, took a gun, a lot of ammunition and what provisions he could find handy. That was the last seen of the murderer, and it is supposed that he fled immediately to the mountains, where he is either hiding or has committed suicide.
